To prioritise safety, we require a minimum of 6 hours of rest before your first dive this will ensure that you are well-rested and hydrated before your first dive.

We recognise that although you have learned about safety during your scuba course/s, the excitement and anticipation of a diving holiday can sometimes cause us to neglect our own readiness for a dive.

Our crew's safety is also important, so we limit the number of dives to four per day, including a night dive, to minimise fatigue and reduce the risk of accidents.

Itineraries are subject to change due to weather and logistics, but our cruise directors will keep you informed.

Palau New / Full Moon Spawning

In sync with our Classic Palau itinerary, Solitude Gaia Palau Palau introduces a series of alluring expeditions through its specialised New and Full Moon Spawning Itineraries, offered in both 7 nights / 8 days and extended 10 nights / 11 days formats. Each curated journey is thoughtfully crafted to immerse you in the captivating natural spectacle of reef fish spawning events. These enthralling moments offer a rare, close-up window into complex fish behaviour, revealing the intricate rhythms and seasonal choreography of marine life.

Whether joining the shorter focused departure or the longer expedition that allows for deeper exploration across Palau's diverse reef systems, guests will experience dedicated effort towards encountering these phenomena. Species observed during spawning periods may include the magnificent bumphead parrotfish, vibrant red snapper, graceful Moorish idol and others.

However, it is important to understand that sightings and behaviours may vary, influenced by seasonal transitions, specific reef locations and the ever-shifting pulse of ocean currents.

While our itineraries are planned with lunar cycles and historical spawning patterns in mind, these events remain guided entirely by nature. As such, precise timing, species presence and intensity of activity cannot be guaranteed.

To maximise the opportunity for meaningful encounters, routes and daily schedules remain intentionally flexible. This adaptive approach allows the expedition team to respond intuitively to real-time conditions and observed marine behaviour. Guests are therefore invited not just on a voyage, but into a living seascape where nature's quiet signals shape the path forward.

Join us for an extraordinary venture into Palau's depths, where patience, curiosity and wonder come together, and where the ocean's most mesmerising gatherings unfold in their own time.

Day 2

Gives the opportunity of a possible 2 to 3 dives.

Choice of Sites: Helmet Wreck, Chandelier Caves, Jake Seaplane, Teshio Maru

Today marks the start of your diving adventure and your first dive. Solitude Gaia Palau will remain anchored in Malakal Bay, just off the shore of the main town. This area holds significant historical importance as it served as the focal point of a major battle between the US and Japanese armed forces during World War II. Within close proximity to the bustling town of Koror, you will discover numerous shipwrecks from that era, providing the opportunity to explore both sunken vessels and an airplane wreck. Additionally, a popular and easily accessible cavern dive awaits you in the nearby Chandelier Caves, nestled within a rock island. This beginner-friendly cavern/cave dive showcases four distinct air chambers within a spacious cavern, where guests can ascend into these ample air chambers and marvel at the remarkable stalactites that adorn the limestone cave's ceiling.

Today, you will embark on a unique Palau diving experience, immersing yourself in the rich history and diverse array of dive sites within this small island nation. While the visibility in this area may not be as crystal-clear as one might expect from Palau's renowned blue waters, it adds an air of mystery to the overall experience. We will remain anchored here overnight, allowing you to fully embrace the allure of this captivating location.

Day 3

Gives the opportunity of a possible 4 dives.

Choice of Sites: Iro Wreck, Helmet Wreck, Chandelier Caves, Buoy 6

Leave Malakal Lagoon Anchorage for Ulong Island after first dive.

As the sun rises, we find ourselves amidst the breathtaking limestone rock islands of Malakal Harbour. Today presents us with more opportunities to dive and discover the hidden gems within the inner lagoon. In the afternoon, we set sail towards the enchanting Ulong Island.

Day 4

Gives the opportunity of a possible 4 dives.

Choice of Sites: Siaes Tunnel, Siaes Corner/Ulong Channel, Sandy Paradise

Moored just off the stunning white sand beach of Ulong Island, we awaken to a day filled with incredible diving opportunities. The Ulong area beckons with its mesmerising walls, vibrant reefs, and dynamic currents. Drifting along these vertical walls gives you a sensation of soaring, as you marvel at the flourishing coral and abundant marine life. Schools of colourful reef fish gracefully ride the currents, while the corners teem with sharks, creating an exhilarating experience for those hooked on adventure. The pristine white sand and crystal-clear waters in this paradise-like setting accentuate the allure of the reef walls that plunge into the depths. Our stay in this captivating area extends into the night, immersing us in the true essence of Ulong Island.

Day 5

Gives the opportunity of a possible 3 to 4 dives.

Choice of Sites: Siaes Tunnel /Siaes Corner, Ulong Channel, Sandy Paradise

Leave Ulong Island Anchorage for Whole Island.

As the sun rises, we find ourselves still in front of Ulong Island, ready to embark on another exciting dive in this area before heading further south. The exceptional visibility in these waters often captivates divers with its breathtaking wide-angle views of vibrant reefs and towering walls. However, if you pay closer attention to the reef itself, you'll discover that Palau is also home to an impressive variety of macro marine life.

In the afternoon, our journey takes us through the remarkable German Channel, a shallow passage carved through the reef during the German occupation to facilitate navigation between Palau's islands. Surrounding most of the country is a barrier reef, with the southern half encompassing the prestigious UNESCO World Heritage site known as the Rock Island Southern Lagoon (RISL). Due to the shallowness of the reef, larger ships must navigate the longer route along the outer edge of the barrier reef to reach the southern islands. Fortunately, our skiffs can traverse the German Channel, offering us a shorter and more convenient route to the southern dive sites.

The actual dive site of the German Channel is located south of the boat passage, where the channel's southern edge gradually slopes into the deep waters. It is in this area that Manta Rays gather to feed and seek cleaning stations, providing a mesmerising spectacle for divers. As we venture further south, we arrive at the southern outer reef, where some of Palau's most renowned dive sites eagerly await our exploration. While we delve into the underwater wonders during the day, Solitude Gaia Palau will embark on a lengthy journey via the eastern outer reef, circumnavigating the southern tip of Peleliu to reunite with us.

Day 6 to 9

Gives the opportunity of a possible 4 dives per day.

Choice of Sites: Peleliu Cut, Peleliu Express, Orange Beach/ German Channel, Blue Corner /Blue Holes /Turtle Cove, Big Drop Off/New Drop Off, Ngedebus Wall

We spend the next 4 days diving the current swept walls and corners of Ngemelis island, home of the Blue Corner and Blue Holes, Peleliu and Carp island. Clear water, stunning coral gardens, and massive schools of both big and small fish, including an impressive number of sharks await. You'll have plenty of chances to navigate current and learn how to utilise a reef hook properly. During these days there is the potential for an optional Peleliu island WW2 land tour, dependent on guest interest and weather conditions (a dive must be skipped to fit the land tour into the daily schedule).

Day 10

Gives the opportunity of a possible 3 dives. Your last dive must comply with an 18-hour no-fly/no-altitude rule.

Choice of Sites: German Channel, Blue Corner, New Drop Off, Big Drop Off /Ngedebus Wall

As we reach our final day of diving, you have become a skilled diver adept at utilising the reef hook and mastering the currents of Palau. We will embark on our last dives, bidding farewell to the enchanting southern reefs of this remarkable destination. With each dive, we savour the underwater wonders one last time before we leisurely sail back to Malakal Harbour, cherishing the memories created during our unforgettable journey.

Return to Malakal Lagoon Anchorage in the late evening

Lembeh Strait: A Diver's Paradise

Lembeh Strait is one of the world's most renowned dive destinations, a must-visit for any diver in Indonesia. Famous for its incredible diversity of critters, many species—such as the Hairy Octopus and Lembeh Sea Dragon—are found only in this local area.

Divers can enjoy mild currents, minimal surge, and shallow dive sites, making it an ideal for both beginners and experienced photographers. Water temperatures vary throughout the year, with the coolest months being July and August when temperatures drop to around 25°-26°C (79°-81°F). For your comfort, we recommend bringing a 3mm wetsuit with a vest or a 5mm wetsuit, especially if you plan to dive frequently. Additional layers are available for rent if you find you need more warmth.

While macro photography and critters are our primary focus, we also venture outside the strait to explore beautiful wide-angle opportunities. Divers will encounter breathtaking coral gardens, towering sea fans, and expansive seascapes perfect for wide-angle shots. Visibility is occasionally excellent, reaching up to 40 meters on the East of Lembeh. Inside the strait, average visibility is around 10 meters, but for our purposes, visibility is rarely a concern.
